

Acknowledgements

After the completion of this thesis, I want to express my deep gratitude to a great number of people. First of all I am grateful to all the elderly respondents, most of whom are no longer alive, who willingly gave me their valuable information. Masha danki pa tur e informashon. In addition, I want to thank the government of the Netherlands Antilles, that through the Institute of Archeology and Anthropology (AAINA) directed at the time by drs. E. Ayubi, provided institutional support and played an important role in supporting the research of oral history.

I am also deeply indebted to my supervisor prof.dr. Gert Oostindie, whose consistent dedication and commitment to the study helped me during the many years of researching and writing. Furthermore I am very grateful to dr. Inge Klinkers who corrected the English of the thesis with admirable dedication and skill. Lucille Haseth gave her all to correct the narratives and songs in Papiamentu and to provide the translation in Papiamentu of the summary.

The completion and publication of this doctoral thesis was made possible by a grant given by the late Mrs. May Henriquez, a votary of culture par excellence. After her passing, her children continued her life-work. The Prins Bernhard Cultuurfonds funded a large part of the English correction, as well as the University of Utrecht and KITLV/Royal Netherlands Institute of Southeast Asian and Caribbean Studies in Leiden. NAAM (National Archeologisch Antropologisch Museum of the Netherlands Antilles) financed the translation of the summary in Papiamentu, the University of the Netherlands Antilles co-funded the eventual publication.

In Curaçao, I am indebted to several people who in one way or another helped me to develop the thesis. First of all masha danki na Elis Juliana whose invaluable knowledge of Curaçaoan culture and history provided me with an insider's view of Afro-Curaçaoan society and thus helped to improve the study. With Daphne van Schendel-Labega I could share important reflections on the thesis. Masha danki to her as well. Thanks to Felix Muizenberg, Rubia Bitorina, Christel Monsanto, Luisette Sambo, Karin Wallace, Adaly Rodriguez, Berber de Vries, Monique Emelina, Richard Doest, Elgenia Pieterella and Angelo La Cruz, who in one way or another were of great significance along the way. Furthermore I should thank Ellen Maduro, Mike Jacobs and Oswin Francinet of the Bureau of Statistics of the Netherlands Antilles who supported me with the statistical part of the study.

Thanks to the Board Members of the NAAM for their continued interest in the study. With NAAM's director Ieteke Witteveen I engaged in stimulating intellectual discussions which provided many valuable insights. Many thanks also to the staff of the National Archives of Curaçao, who gave themselves wholeheartedly when I requested their help. The same gratitude must be extended to the staff of the Caribiana department of the Library Fundashon Biblioteka Públiko Kòrsou, in particular to Lianne Leonora. My gratitude also goes to the staff of the Mongui Maduro Library and to the staff of the Library of the University of the Netherlands Antilles.

Parts of the manuscript were discussed with dr. Kevin Dawson, dr. Judith Carney, dr. Rivke Jaffe and dr. Maureen Warner Lewis, who gave valuable feedback on the thesis. Dr. Alan Benjamin provided much support and encouragement. He read the manuscript of the thesis with a critical eye as well, and offered valuable advice and comments. I should also thank Jeanine Evers, dr. Jay Haviser, Ernest Gaari and Emy Maduro for reading the manuscript of the thesis very critically and offering valuable advice and comments.

In the Netherlands many people also supported me. To begin with, Han Jordaan, who provided invaluable guidance in the research of archival documents. Furthermore I am indebted to dedicated staff of the library of the KITLV, Rini Hogewoning and Josephine Schrama and especially to Irene Rolfes of Caribbean Studies whose enthusiasm in helping out was far beyond the call of duty. At KITLV, I also had stimulating discussions with Liza de Laat on our shared research interests.

On a personal note, I am indebted to my friend Bart ten Broek for instilling in me the fighting spirit to continue against all odds. My friends Jeanine Evers, Ingrid den Heijer-Bodeutsch, Ernest Gaari, Adeline Jones and Swinda Philippus demonstrated their deep friendship and provided much encouragement.

Finally, I want to thank my sons, Kwame and Amilcar, and my eleven sisters and brothers for their love and support.